2. [redacted] examined the proposed roster for replacement of [redacted] personnel now [redacted] with personnel in OGI and ONS. He also examined the curricula vitae of those whose names appear on the list. He was informed that we are prepared to replace clerical personnel as well as analysts. It was suggested that he see Mr. Amory about the latter's desire to send three economists to [redacted] a plan which would increase the Table of Organization from its present twelve to thirteen.

3. [redacted] expressed complete satisfaction with our roster of replacements, reassured himself concerning the value of [redacted] to OGI and ONS, and expressed his concern lest overlaps in [redacted] be inadequate for proper continuity of the Division's work. [redacted] explained to General [redacted] that the scheduling of departures was in the hands of [redacted] and was contingent upon completion by all concerned of training in [redacted] according to [redacted] own request. Mr. Douglass made it clear to [redacted] that as far as we are concerned, all persons on the roster are available for [redacted] duty now.

NOTE: Subsequent to the meeting with [redacted] OGI obtained a copy of the new T/O for [redacted], which shows seventeen positions instead of the thirteen hitherto considered. The new positions provide for increased emphasis on economic intelligence and an additional position for satellite political intelligence. As soon as OGI has given sufficient consideration to the problem of filling these new positions, a revised roster will be issued.
